Leaking And Waterproofing

Waterproofing involves making materials or structures resistant to water penetration, while leaks refer to unintended water entry. Images related to waterproofing often depict various methods like applying membranes, coatings, or using specialized materials to prevent water ingress. Leaks, on the other hand, are shown through images of water damage, dripping, or standing water.

Dislodged or Popping Tiles Repair

Are your floor tiles or wall tiles starting to dislodge? One sign that your tiles might be dislodging is when they produce a 'hollow' sound when you knock a metallic item against them. If you hear a 'hollow' sound, the adhesive between the substrate and the tile has been compromised, leading to a loosening in its 'stickiness'. A tell-tale sign you need tiling repair is when your tiles start to 'tent' or bulge, forming a protrusion on the surface. In the most serious cases, homeowners have witnessed floor tiles pop up several inches into the air, or in the case of wall tiles, falling onto the ground. To prevent injury, cover the affected area immediately with a cardboard to prevent stepping on it directly.

Waterproofing and Wetworks

Do you suspect your bathroom or balcony to be leaky? You may conduct a simple visual check to assess if there could be a chance your bathroom or balcony needs re-waterproofing. You may check for the following visually:

- ⦿ Loose or hollow tiles
- ⦿ Persistent mouldy, damp appearance
- ⦿ Peeling paint on adjacent wall outside
- ⦿ Yellow stains on the ceiling under the shower.

Demolition

A complete service is provided including the removal and disposal of tiles, fittings and furnishings.

All surfaces will be professionally prepared to ensure quality and durability.

Dilemma In Choosing The 'PERFECT DECK'

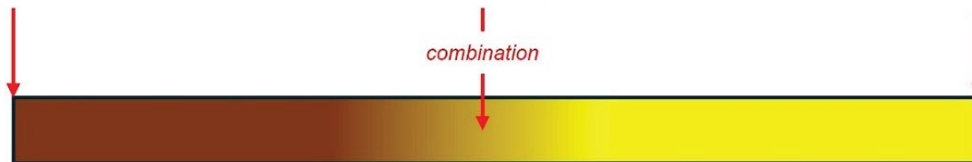

Outdoor flooring a.k.a 'decking' is available in 3 wide categories, each helping different ends of the spectrum with its attributes and unique selling propositions. While it is not possible to select which of them to be your 'PERFECT DECK', it is our duty to share their characteristics with you and you shall choose the one that best suits your design and lifestyle.

Different Parts of Wood

NATURAL WOOD
(CHENGAL / BALAU)

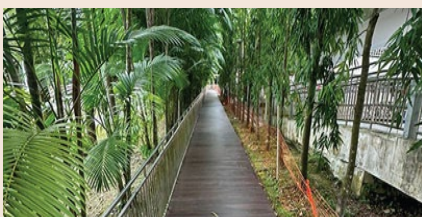

ENGINEERED WOOD
(BBDECK®)

SYNTHETIC WOOD
(WPC)

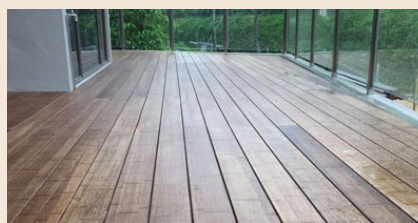

Natural Wood

Once trees are felled, we will cut them up in planks, season them through the air-dry process before installing them in your home. Each piece of plank has its unique wood grains and no two pieces are identical. A piece of natural wood is like a rare gem and it can withstand the toughest test of time with scheduled and proper maintenance.

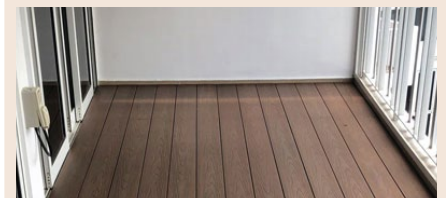

Engineered Wood

The family of engineered wood is wide but in general, they are all made up of a combination of both natural and synthetic wood. Our engineered wood is made from plantation Bamboo and consists of 95% natural wood fibres and 5% additives. While there are many renditions of 'engineered wood', ours support re-sanding and re-varnishing over the years. Besides the 10-year warranty, our BBDECK® is proven to outlive its warranty period. An environmentally friendly product.

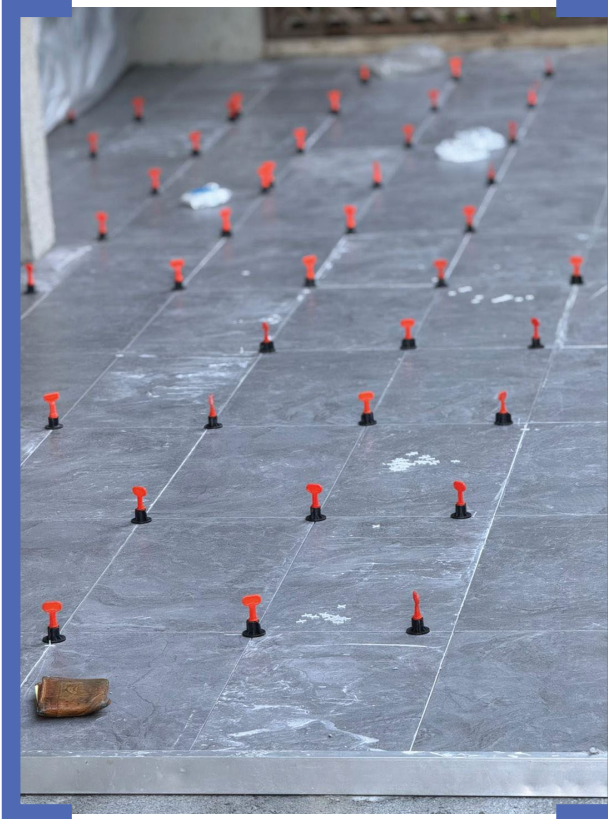

Natural Wood

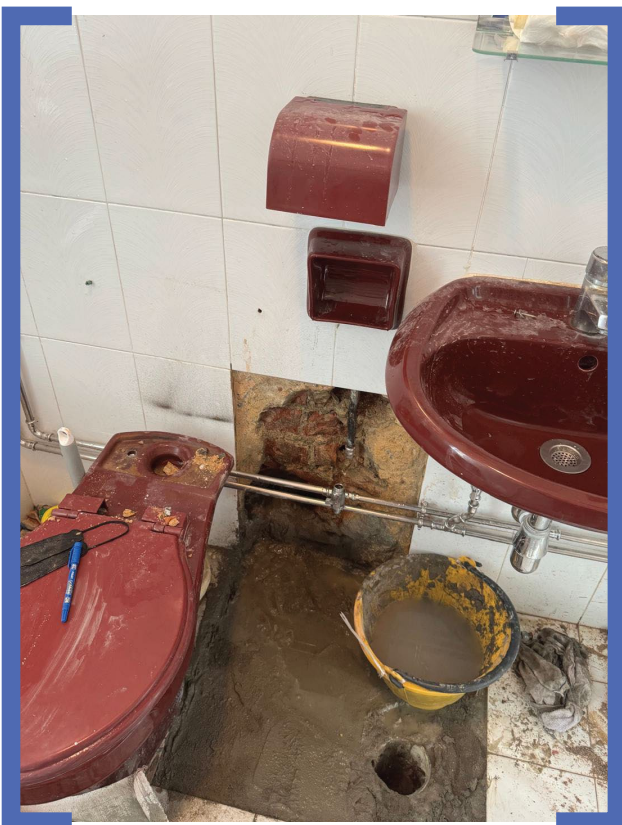

On the other end of the spectrum is synthetic wood also commonly known as WPC (Wood Plastic Composite). WPC is made of a cleverly mixture consisting of recycled fine wood fibers and plastic resin from only HDPE grade one. This concoction is a secret recipe and it varies between vendors depending on market and climate suitability. Our WPC is tailored to the climatic conditions of Singapore and we are proud to pen down 10 years warranty and, all at ZERO maintenance effort. An environmentally friendly product.
